Chapter 1 by Brock Thompson

A solar flare has wiped out all technology on Earth.

The lack of security has unleashed a horrifying disease upon the citizens of Earth, and it originated from the CDC headquarters.

The military and government has fallen, and it is every man for himself.

But there is hope!

This hope is a former automotive engineer named James Badstone.

Chapter 2 by Toad

James heavy boot kicked through the thin door. He walked into the dark warehouse. He scanned the room for possible threats.

In the corner he saw something that caught his eye. He walked passed the rows of boxes to the back of the store.

The floor was covered in the deep pile of debris. He stepped over the rubble and touched the box. He tapped the lid of slowly.

James reached down and pulled out the large shotgun.

"No more runnin' for old James!"

Chapter 3 by 19christiann

As he admired the gun, he heard a creak from outside in the hall. He raised the gun, as he was walking slowly forward, he heard a faint whisper say "I'm coming for you". He panicked and ran, as he was running he saw a shadow behind him getting closer, and closer, and closer until.....

Chapter 4 by The Scaroziian

He falls over. He feels a slight pain in his shoulder, but he whipes it of and starts running again. The shadow had gotten closer. He could feel the footsteps of the unidentified creature.

But suddenly, it stops. The shadow stops moving, and James does to. Crying is the only thing he can hear. Child crying. He runs back.

"What have i done wrong?"

Chapter 5 by The Scaroziian

It's a five year old girl. James try getting closer, but she crawls back in fear. "GET AWAY FROM ME!" she screams. She starts crying again.

"Im not good with people. I just needed help, but i dont know any good ways to ask" She says while swallowing her own tears. I again try to get closer, and this time she doesent move.

"It's okay to be scared. Im not out to get you. What do toy need help with?" I say as passive as i am able to. She stands up and lends me her hand. She drags me with her into a dark room in the back.

"what is that!?" I scream.

The woman was looking at me with a worried expression. "I think your arm is broken."

I ran over to the lady to see if she was still her alive

I feel her pulse and I feel the beat of her heart. She was still alive

"We have to do somthing! My mother is dying" the little girl screamed.

Theres not much I can do, she is slowley bleding out and even if i stop the blood she will still most likely die.

"Please dont let her die" the girl says.

"Fine, I think I know somone that can help". I pick up the lady and carry out of the building.

Chapter 7 by Paul Romero

The streets were deafened by silence until the building doors slammed behind James and the girl. His vehicle was waiting a few cars away. The girl helped hold her mom steady while John opened the hatch to the SUV and lowered her in. The girl's mother was losing to much blood and her breathing was minimal. James gathered what first-aid he had and quickly started tending to her wounds. The girl was in a bit of shock, but seem to be holding it together.

"What's your name?", James asked. "Isabelle", she said. "Well Isabelle, are you and your mother here alone?" James asked, his voice sounding out of breath. "Yes, my mother and I were looking for food when this happened", she exclaimed. "How was your mother injured?", James asked.

Chapter 8 by Elizabeth Stevens

"She was getting the food off of the shelves when a man came in and attacked her." Isabelle said

I looked at her and looked at her mom. She wasn't going to make it she was going to die. I had to try an save her though. I had to try for Isabelle. She stared crying again.

"don't cry I will try my best to save her but if she doesn't make it do you have some one to say with" I asked honing that she would say yes
